BIOGRAPHY

Connie Harrison is an artist living and working in South East London, England.

Harrison's practice plays with texture, depth and organic forms through a process of layering and stripping away oil paint and a wax paste she makes. Through variations of surfaces pictorial compositions emerge slowly and abstracted. In her more recent work, elements of landscapes float between foreground and background, distorting perspectives and what we are familiar with. With the intention to overwhelm our senses through colour and instinctual material curiosities.
